Dear Colleagues,

The Center for Teaching and Learning and Library and Information Technology Services are looking for faculty members from each of the four divisions of the college (Arts, Humanities, Social Science, Natural Sciences) to participate in a pilot exploration of generative AI through ChatGPT4. Each of the four faculty representatives will receive 6 months of a premium ChatGPT 4 license to experiment with the platform during the fall semester. Participants are encouraged to use the platform to develop activities, create new assignments, and explore other ways you and your students might use this AI tool.

To apply please send a message to Ashley Hamelin (ashley.hamelin@trincoll.edu) indicating your interest in using ChatGPT4, your academic division, and a short description of the way you envision using the software to support your teaching, with a focus on your fall 2023 courses. Participants will share their findings at a Common Hour event on February 29, 2024.

Submissions are due by September 8th, 2023

David Tatem
Head of Digital Learning & Scholarship
Trinity College LITC 110
Hartford CT 06106
860-297-2124
On Campus Tu,W,Th Remote M,F
Make an appointment with me
Make an appointment with an STA