November 14-15, 2008

Conference: Rethinking Cities and Communities: Urban Transition Before and During the Era of Globalization

The Center plays the central role in promoting Trinity's new strategic initiative of innovative and integrated urban and global teaching, research, and engagement on campus, in Hartford, and globally. By organizing this conference, the Center is reaching out to develop scholarly exchanges and cooperation with scholars and institutions, especially those in the greater Northeast region, that share a broad interest in urban and global studies. This conference will provide an open forum for both guest and Trinity scholars to present their research and engaged in debates that will reevaluate and advance the current interdisciplinary scholarly work on cities and communities in the context of globalization and transnationalism.

November 13, 2008

Symposium: Dealing with Sustainability Challenges: Lessons from Trinity, Hartford, and Connecticut

This event follows a series of panel discussions of the Hartford Research Seminar in spring 2008 sponsored by the Center for Urban and Global Studies. Panelists include: Joan Morrison, Professor of Biology, Trinity College; Karen Misbach, Manager, Environmental Health & Safety & Sustainability, Trinity College; Amey Marrella, Deputy Commissioner, Department of Environmental Protection, Connecticut; and Mary Rickel Pelletier, Project Director, Park River Watershed Revitalization Initiative.

October 23, 2008

Conference: Cultural Identity through the Arts in Urban Communities

For additional information, contact:
Center for Urban and Global Studies at Trinity College
(860) 297-5175.
www.trincoll.edu/ug